

- Go to HirePaths.com/profile and explore the career stories.
- Each box on the bingo card below has a missing name or other word. Write in the answer, then color in the box.
- When you have five colored boxes in a row (horizontally, vertically or diagonally), raise your hand and yell BINGO!

HINT: The missing words in each column start with the letter at the top!

B

I

N

G

O

Quinton

_____ was inspired by MythBusters to pursue a career where he could build and test things. Now, he's a mechanical engineer.

___ support technician Dalton McCune-Seiler accidentally made a change to his mom's new computer when he was a kid and had to rush to fix it before she got home. From then on, he knew he wanted to work with technology.

Registered _____ Katrina McClure was reimbursed for the cost of her certified nursing assistant and registered nursing licenses through Stormont Vail Health's tuition assistance program.

Carrie

_____ knows firsthand that despite any disabilities or challenges someone may have, everyone can work doing something they love.

Elizabeth Paradise started working in retail after high school but decided to make a change when she was 30. Today, she's an _____ therapy assistant.

_____ Horning's safe place growing up was school.

The G. ____ Bill paid for Marine veteran Kahm Flanary's lineman training.

Hunter Dean got started in health care after earning his certified _____ assistant license while still in high school.

Lane Religa recommends that anyone interested in videography learns _____ design and video editing as early as possible.

Since he didn't want to graduate college with debt, Zachary Zimmerman took advantage of Spirit AeroSystems' tuition reimbursement program. Now, he's the senior director of defense _____.

Anna

_____ always loved children but didn't realize just how much she loved working with them until she had her own. As a childcare teacher, she gets to watch her students grow.

Sergeant Lana Urteaga wants to build unbreakable partnerships with the community and the police force in her role as a public _____ officer.

FREE SPACE

Will Henry learned to be a _____ as an apprentice with G. Thomas Jewelers in Manhattan.

MRI Technologist Ajala Anavberokhai wanted to be the next _____ when she was a child, but after being a medic in the Army Reserves, she started her career in radiology.

When Tyler _____ was 5, his brother needed open-heart surgery. That experience inspired him to work in the medical field.

Elementary school teacher Kristin Ray loves that she can _____ her students.

Cortland _____ started as an intern with Garmin and encourages others to take advantage of similar opportunities.

Andre Connor understands that there's always room for improvement, _____ and change.

_____ room registered nurse Heather Ferguson enjoys making patients and their families feel better on what is a scary day for them.

Personal

_____ Michael Hidalgo got most of the training he needed through hands-on experience, with a few courses sprinkled in.

Richard Berndt is a construction technology _____ and encourages students to never stop learning.

_____ gas service technician Jon P. Dooley-Weiland got almost all the training he needed from his employer, Midwest Energy Inc.

Crystal _____ is a sheet metal mechanic and worked on the legendary Citation Latitude jet.

Jemel May spent three years in _____ Park as a canvassing recruiter for the Marines.

B I N G O

Quinton BERGGREN was inspired by MythBusters to pursue a career where he could build and test things. Now, he's a mechanical engineer.	IT support technician Dalton McCune-Seiler accidentally made a change to his mom's new computer when he was a kid and had to rush to fix it before she got home. From then on, he knew he wanted to work with technology.	Registered NURSE Katrina McClure was reimbursed for the cost of her certified nursing assistant and registered nursing licenses through Stormont Vail Health's tuition assistance program.	Carrie GREENWOOD knows firsthand that despite any disabilities or challenges someone may have, everyone can work doing something they love.	Elizabeth Paradise started working in retail after high school but decided to make a change when she was 30. Today, she's an OCCUPATIONAL therapy assistant.
BRITTANY Horning's safe place growing up was school.	The G. I. Bill paid for Marine veteran Kahm Flanary's lineman training.	Hunter Dean got started in health care after earning his certified NURSING assistant license while still in high school.	Lane Religa recommends that anyone interested in videography learns GRAPHIC design and video editing as early as possible.	Since he didn't want to graduate college with debt, Zachary Zimmerman took advantage of Spirit AeroSystems' tuition reimbursement program. Now, he's the senior director of defense OPERATIONS.
Anna BARTHOLOMEW always loved children but didn't realize just how much she loved working with them until she had her own. As a childcare teacher, she gets to watch her students grow.	Sergeant Lana Urteaga wants to build unbreakable partnerships with the community and the police force in her role as a public INFORMATION officer.	FREE SPACE	Will Henry learned to be a GOLDSMITH as an apprentice with G. Thomas Jewelers in Manhattan.	MRI Technologist Ajala Anavberokhai wanted to be the next OPRAH when she was a child, but after being a medic in the Army Reserves, she started her career in radiology.
When Tyler BROWN was 5, his brother needed open-heart surgery. That experience inspired him to work in the medical field.	Elementary school teacher Kristin Ray loves that she can INSPIRE her students.	Cortland NEWMAN started as an intern with Garmin and encourages others to take advantage of similar opportunities.	Andre Connor understands that there's always room for improvement, GROWTH and change.	OPERATING room registered nurse Heather Ferguson enjoys making patients and their families feel better on what is a scary day for them.
Personal BANKER Michael Hidalgo got most of the training he needed through hands-on experience, with a few courses sprinkled in.	Richard Berndt is a construction technology INSTRUCTOR and encourages students to never stop learning.	NATURAL gas service technician Jon P. Dooley-Weiland got almost all the training he needed from his employer, Midwest Energy Inc.	Crystal GRIMMETT is a sheet metal mechanic and worked on the legendary Citation Latitude jet.	Jemel May spent three years in OVERLAND Park as a canvassing recruiter for the Marines.